Alternative Education Options

"More CHOICES" directory is a resource for service providers who work with young people.

It may help to identify alternative program options for young people in Southern Adelaide or the Fleurieu Peninsula.

Please use this resource to develop new partnerships with other youth service agencies, and to promote access and information about the engaging and innovative opportunities available to young people in the South.

In past years CHOICES has been updated and produced through collaboration between a group of local youth agencies. This edition of More CHOICES has been updated by Community Partnerships @ Work Inc (CP@W) and is available on the web via www.cpatw.com.au (click on Projects)

A limited number of printed copies have been made available to agencies that support young people with disabilities by the National Disability Co-ordination Officer Program (contact monica.leahy@tafesa.edu.au)

Bowden Brompton Community School

Organisation running the program:	DECS (Department of Education and Children's Services)
Program Outline:	Alternative education settings for students who are unable to access mainstream education settings for a variety of reasons. Small classes, negotiated curriculum and some SACE/VET pathways are offered. Bowden Brompton Community School (BBCS) is a South Australian DECS Community School working with students who have been unable to effectively access education in traditional schools. The majority of students have experienced significant trauma issues in their lives. Trauma refers to complex family breakdown issues, mental health issues, as well as welfare, social and juvenile justice complexities in student lives. Our students are 'at risk' of not completing their schooling and engagement and retention of students is therefore of major importance. BBCS students are dealing with complexities in their lives that alienate them from or engagement with traditional mainstream schooling models.
